

CHESTNUT CHAT SERIES:
CHAT 15: POLLINATION WORKSHOP
DATE: FRIDAY, OCTOBER 2, 2020

ORIGINATOR	QUESTION / COMMENT
From Chad to All panelists	Hi Sara & Erin. Chad in Potter Co. here.
From Chad to All panelists	Oops - you too Lisa
From Sara Fitzsimmons to Chad and all panelists	Hi Chad! thanks for coming!
From laurae.dooley	2 or 3 dead specimens have been found in Massachusetts and I think 1 in nursery in NH
From Lisa Thomson	Hi Chad! Good to "see" you!
From Erin Lizotte to All panelists	Hi Chad!
From Erin Lizotte	Hi Everyone!
From laurae.dooley	Spotted flies
From Chad to All panelists	we have a group of 3 here - all who have (native) AC's on their property.
From The American Chestnut Foundation to All panelists	Please ask Erin for her ppt so that I can post it and audience can get all of this amazing information.
From Phil Marshall to All panelists	tar spot maybe
From Steve Jeffers to All panelists	what about replanting in the same site?? Many orchard crops have a replant problem when putting the same species back in a hole where a similar tree was removed??
From Steve Jeffers to All panelists	apples and cherries exhibit Replant Disease
From Steve Jeffers to All panelists	this is not related to a specific pathogen
From Anne Duncan to All panelists	Hi Everyone, I have to sign off shortly but just want to say this was so wonderful, yet again! Terrific learning and sharing. Keep it up! Thanks!
From Steve Jeffers to All panelists	Phytophthora cinnamomi should not be the species causing PRR in Michigan. It is likely one of the species more tolerant of cold temps
From Clark to All panelists	Sorry but I have to run. Off to Antelope Island in the Great Salt Lake. Stay safe and healthy, Clark.
From Steve Jeffers to All panelists	we have studied the effects of prescribed burning in forest settings on survival of P. cinnamomi in soil. Erin is correct that fire has also no effect on temps in the soil at 10 cm deep
From Lisa Thomson	Take care everyone. Great Chat and kudos to Erin for an excellent presentation. I have another call at 1: 00 so need to hop off. Tune into Oct 16th Chat at 11:30 am ET for a culinary treat and learn about Cooking with Chestnuts! Thanks to Sara for facilitating and to all of you for joining us! Lisa
From Estelle Halchak to All panelists	Hi I have three young trees with issues and would like to send pictures. would you please put up your email again. Thanks Estelle

CHESTNUT CHAT SERIES:
CHAT 15: POLLINATION WORKSHOP
DATE: FRIDAY, OCTOBER 2, 2020

ORIGINATOR	QUESTION / COMMENT
From Estelle Halchak to All panelists	Thank you
From Erin Lizotte	taylo548@msu.edu
From mcclain to All panelists	Ha Ha - Chestnut version of Click and Clack in Car talk.
From Chad to All panelists	FYI - 6 total attendees in Potter Co., PA all interested in anything for native American Chestnuts.
From Chad to All panelists :	GREAT presentation - thanks to both of you!

