Jill Furgurson:	Hi, Kendra - Nice to see you again (Jill Furgurson, NCSU)
Kendra Collins:	Heeeey Anna!
Kendra Collins:	Hi Jill! Glad you could join us this am :)
Dennis Blanchard:	Rod as a life long IATSE member I appreciate your humility. I will be in Asheville next to work on my 150 acre farm that is being restored to be a regenerative farm. There are some standing old growth Chestnuts along with several stranding chestnut farm and home stead buildings.I am interested in meeting you for coffee on me if you have time.
Catherine Martini:	Hi Helen, I was there at the Lafayette farm with you yesterday, and from the Catskill area originally! - Catherine Martini, Northern Regional Outreach Coordinator
Helen K Chase:	Thank you Catherine
Robert W Hyland Jr:	Bob and Lisa Hyland, Pittsburgh, happy to be on the call

Attendee	Question/Comment
Clark Beebe:	Good morning Ms. Jules! It is nice to finally put a face to your name. Clark.
Clark Beebe:	Rod represents the "public" that we are trying to reach.
Kendra Collins:	https://www.collectiveprojects.tv/ - Rod's website
Jill Furgurson:	How would you describe your particular vision for the film? Who was your target audience and what message did you want to share?
Thomas Cervone:	Thank you Rod
Tom Wild:	Thanks Rod, it was a pleasure to host you t Lesesne
Steve Hillis:	2 items. Where posted for link to film?
Kendra Collins:	Hi Steve - the film isn't posted on-line for general viewing at this time but you can learn more here: https://www.rescuingtheamericanchestnut.com/
Kendra Collins:	As for regulatory update - we have not heard anything recently and are hoping for more information soon. We'll keep everyone posted
Steve Hillis:	Thanks
Margaret Allen:	To Hosts Privately - have you approached the Waltons (as in Walmart)? - a screening at Crystal Bridges Museum would be awesome.
Clark Beebe:	How long does the film run?
Kendra Collins:	Currently just over 50 mins
Kendra Collins:	https://www.rescuingtheamericanchestnut.com/
Edward Sterling:	Wondering if you will have a policy for showing the film on community access television stations
Helen K Chase:	will each of us on this viewing right now be automatically included in the email newsletter list
Mari Peterson:	Here is the email link to subscriber
